MUNICH, March 1.—Louis the XI,

King of Bavaria, died yesterday, in the twenty-third year of his age. London, March 1.—Little progress has been made in the trial of the Fenians at Sligo. Most of yesterday was consumed in the endeavor to empannel the jury in such a way as to get a mixed jury. It became ne-cessary to summon six Prussians, but these afterwards absconded, and an adjournment had to be made until Monday. True bills have been found against Kean, Fitzsimmons, Fitzgibbon, Leonard and Leary. The prisoners will be brought to trial without delay.

The Reconstruction Conventions.

ATLANTA, February 29 .- The Convention unanimously resolved, day, to request Congress to make a liberal appropriation for the building of the air line road from Atlanta to Charlotte, N. C. A motion to ad-journ sine die was lost. A motion to reconsider the action of yesterday in tabling a resolution endorsing the course of Congress in reference to impeachment, was lost by 60 years to 62 nays. Holcombe moved that this Convention do now adjourn, to meet again on the third Tuesday in May, and remain in session so long as it may be necessary for the protection of loyal Georgians and the Congress of the United States.

The Convention will probably adjourn on the 4th of March.

CHARLESTON, March 2.—The Con-CHARLESTON, March 2.—The Convention worked effectively to-day, and passed eighteen sections of the article on education. The State is divided on education. The State is divided next session.

Twenty officers of the Reserve of the R sioners, and attendance of pupils. resolution was adopted to petition Congress to take no action looking towards a repeal of the present import duty on rice, on the ground that the abolishment of the present tariff will introduce India rice at a low figure, and compete with home production, thus rendering the culture of the staple unprofitable and deprive the State of one of its chief resources. A re-solution to adjourn finally on the 11th March failed. The Convention is working rapidly and with moderation.

It is noticeable that several Republicans vote frequently with the Demo-crats. The highest vote of the minority to day reached twenty, which would prevent impeachment by two votes. The Senate is still in session, and the voting has reached twenty-second article of proceedure without material amendment; it will conclude the matter to night. Wade does not vote nor preside during these proceedings.

COMMENCEMENT DAY AT THE MEDI-COLLEGE. -The commencement of the Medical College of South Caro-lina, was celebrated at the college building on Saturday. The exercis were opened by Prof. J. J. Chisolm, M. D., the Dean of the Faculty, who reported to the President and Board of Trustees, the condition of the institution during the past year. In the course of his remarks the Dean spoke of the high reputation of this college and the head rank which it had always, and still sustains among the medical schools of America, of which this is one of the oldest. Medical students study from two to three years before applying for the degree of doctor in medicine. advanced students, or those who are taking their last course preparatory to graduating, always bear in this school a larger per centage to the number in the classes than in any other institution of high standing in the United States, which is in itself the strongest proof of the exalted re-putation of this seat of medical learning and the high appreciation in which the diploma of this faculty is valued throughout the Southern States. The conduct of the class was throughout the Southern referred to as most exemplary and the application to their studies most satisfactory.

After conferring the degrees, the Hon. Alfred Hugar, the senior mem-ber of the Board of Trustees, deliver ed an address, which was filled with good advice and pathetic appeals to the finer feelings of these young gentlemen, who, from this time forward, had enrolled their names as members and supporters of the divine, noble and most honorable of professions.

Although feeble in body, Mr. Huger has lost nothing in vigor of mind. The fires within still burn brightly, and those innate powers of oratory which in former days never failed to fix the attention of the General Assembly, of which he was long a member, are now rendered still more striking by the full mellow depth of his rich voice, combined with the bleached locks of his octogenarian. We would that all of our young men who are about setting out in life, could have heard the good advice embodied in the address of Mr. Huger.
